The Shamrock.
In Ireland only one shamrock is known. It is an indigenous species of clover, which trails along the ground among the grass in meadows. The trefold leaves are not more than one-fourth the size of the smallest clover usually seen in America and are pure green in color, without any of the brown shading of white and pink clovers. The creeping stem is hard and fibrous and difficult to dislodge from the earth. On St. Patrick's day the true shamrock has to be searched out among the grass, for, though comparatively plentiful at that season, it grows close to the ground. Later it bears a tiny "white crown" blossom. The information that shamrock is the Arabic word for trefoil may be of service to those interested in the Irish race.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Hymn for Harvest.
Now to thee, gracious Lord of the Seasons, be honor and glory and praise.
That again in the joy of the harvest our jubilation anthem we raise.
Though many the fears that beset us, though faith waxes feeble and cold,
Thy bow, with its promise unbroken, glitters still as it glittered of old.

Though weary we grow in our watching the weeks of the drought as they pass,
When the earth is as iron beneath us and the heaven above us as brass;
Yet the showers come back in their season;
Once more in the land there is seen
The brook brimming over with crystal, the grass as the emerald green.

Though troubled the spirit within us, when the mist upon valley and plain
Lies thick, and the clouds in their armies return again after the rain.
Yet the sun cometh forth as a giant, and after the tempest of the morn
Is cloudless and fair, and the color grows golden and rich on the corn.

For seed-time and harvest we thank thee; our fears, as the shadows, have fled;
Thou hast given his seed to the sower, thou hast given the eater his bread.
Alfred Church

Another Use for Old News papers.
A very careful housekeeper we are acquainted with says:
For sweeping a room neatly there is nothing like newspaper stuff. It saves so much labor. This is her method:
Take a page of newspaper at a time, wet in hot water, and squeeze it till it ceases to drip. Tear into small pieces of the size of your hand, and cast them all over the carpet. Then sweep, and most of the dust in the room will be gathered into the paper.

On matting use larger pieces of paper, pushing them ahead of the broom to take up any fluff there may be, before beginning the regular sweeping. After a pile or other carpet is thoroughly swept, a sponging with ammonia and water will preserve its brightness wonderfully.

About once a month, after sweeping well take a pailful of warm water, and add to it a tablespoonful of ammonia or turpentine. Two spoonfuls of the latter will do good, as it is an excellent preventive of moths. Go over the whole carpet with a large soft cloth or sponge wrung so as not to drip. It is surprising how rapidly the water gets discolored. If the carpet is large or much solid or dusty the water must be changed once or twice.—New York Recorder.

When David went forth to combat with the giant Goliath he was little aware that in a future day and generation, his exploit would furnish an illustration of the merits of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. But giant disorders will often succumb to these little "Pellets," which can and do remove the source of disease. Constipation, an inactive liver, an impaired digestion will grow into serious maladies if not conquered in their earlier stages. The "Pellets" will cure disordered liver, sick headache, dyspepsia, piles, constipation and its accompanying ills.

Seven Years Without a Birthday.
A Scottish clergyman, who died 30 years ago, Mr. Leishman, of Kinross, used to tell that he once lived seven years without a birthday. The statement puzzled most who heard it. They could see that he had been born on the 29th of February he would have no birthday except in a leap year. But leap year comes once in four years, and this accounts for a gap of three years only. Their first thought would, therefore, naturally be that the old man, who, in fact, was fond of a harmless jest, was somehow joking about the seven years. There was, however, no joke or trick in his assertion.

At the present time there can be very few, if there are any, who have this tale to tell of themselves, for one who can tell it must have been born on the 29th day of February at least 98 years ago. But a similar line of missing dates is now soon to return; and, indeed, there are, no doubt, some readers who will have only one birthday to celebrate for nearly 20 years to come.

The solution of the puzzle is to be found in the fact, which does not appear to be widely known, that the year 1800 was not a leap year, and 1900 will not be. The February of 1892 had 29 days, but in all the seven years intervening between 1896 and 1904, as well as in the three between 1892 and 1896, that month will have only 28.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The Misuse of Some Adjectives.
The word "nice" is frequently misused and taken from its significance of neat, delicate, dainty, to stand for agreeable, charming, or virtuous. Thus, a girl was talking to another of that decidedly objectionable member of society, a burglar, and, alluding to one in particular, a man undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, said, with emphasis: "I don't think he was a nice young man." A "nice" girl, by the way often does duty in describing a young woman who, whatever else she may be, is more than nice if she is gentle, good, winsome, and well bred, and whose niceness ought to be taken for granted.

"Lovely" in the same way is applied equally to a favorite pudding or a beloved relative. "First-rate" serves as a qualifying adjective when scenery, fruit, clothes, a pleasant time, or—O, worst and saddest of misnomers!—the natural appearance of a corpse are the topics which the speaker has in mind.—Harper's Bazaar.

Among all the clubs of the present day a "Reading Club" is certainly one of the most practical. It originated among a number of housewives, who decided that "darning" was too dull work to be pursued in the solitude of one's own home, and so arranged to have a weekly meeting on Wednesday forenoon, to which each should take her mending, while those who had no work were to entertain the rest by reading or something of a similar character. The plan was carried out and worked admirably. Not only was a pleasant weekly entertainment enjoyed and a great deal of interesting work happily disposed of, but the members became familiar with a large amount of elevating literature which else they would not have had the time or the opportunity for assimilating.—Examiner.

It is the pretty Christian legend that the aspen quivers with shame because from its wood the cross was made. Observers of nature have discovered, however, that the quivering of the aspen leaves is due to the fact that the leaf stalk is flat on the sides and so thin about the middle that the slightest breath of wind sets all the leaves a wagging horizontally. A single leaf plucked off and taken by the end of the leaf stalk between the thumb and the forefinger admirably illustrates the peculiarity of the aspen.

No worm or insect is ever found upon the eucalyptus tree or in the earth penetrated by its roots.

Two Lives Saved.
Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mrs. Thomas, 139 E. Franklin St., Chicago, suffers from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Many not members of the class became interested and wished to attend the meetings. Toward the close of the course the professor made a second visit, and gave an interesting lecture on the whole period. Memories of school-days were revived; fresh ambition came to not a few; tired mothers found a new rest from housework and care of the children in studying about Florence Nightingale and Empress Eugenie. Business men read the foreign items in the papers with new appreciation; the Irish problem, the European balance of power, the relations between France and Germany, the work of Bismarck, stood out as never before; a larger

The Institutional Village Church.
By THE REV. E. A. GEORGE.
The village church in a certain sense has a wider sphere than that of the city, it stands so much more alone. Side by side with the city church are lecture courses, concerts, Young Men's Christian Associations, public libraries, entertainments of varied character, the stimulating reaction of association with large numbers of men and women, countless influences which tend to keep persons thinking, to rest them after work, to call out the best in them. From this point of view the city church might almost be excused if it contented itself with the old-fashioned lines of specifically religious work, leaving wider philanthropic and educational influences to the many agencies which surround it. Yet it is this very city church, with all its lack of isolation, which is branching out from the conventional channel and contributing to the general physical, social, and intellectual well being of the community.

Directly opposite is the situation of the village church. It stands alone. What allies has it, to which it may intrude general humanizing influences? What place is there open every night, except the saloon, if there be one, and the store, that club-house of the country town? Beside the occasional lecture and concert and theatrical performance (which is generally of a character to justify the historic opposition of the stricter sects), what is there to call men and women out of themselves, to stimulate them to be anything but drudges? There is a certain barrenness of life in the ordinary village, due to this very lack of isolation. The atmosphere is close with local interests which stifle, and petty scandals which poison. The average town needs airing, needs to have its windows thrown wide open, that breezes from the great outside world may blow in to purify and invigorate. There are not a few who long for this fresh air. There are tired women who have hardly opened a book since their marriage, except the well-worn cook-book, and who look upon the shelf of school books as a dream of the past. As they dust them, they think with a sigh of the intellectual interests which housework and the care of children have crippled, and there is nothing to stimulate a return to the old studies. There are men who wish to check the inroads upon time and life of business, and to give their higher selves a chance, but there is little to look upon that shelf of school books as a dream of the past.
